Apollo Sponsors Pano Awards

Photographers could win a free Apollo Motorhome Holiday as part of the inaugural EPSON International Pano Awards. The leading recreational vehicle operator has supplied free campervan hire in Australia, New Zealand or the USA as part of the competition's first prize.

Competition curator and award winning photographer David Evans said "we are delighted that Apollo is providing such generous support to The Epson International Pano Awards.

"As a travel photographer, Apollo is one of my best suppliers. They continue to lead the pack in professionalism, value and convenience. I hope photographers around the world discover Apollo for themselves as they wonder and wander on this magnificent planet," he said.

Apollo CEO Luke Trouchet said "panographic photography is the perfect way to showcase the stunning landscapes our clients enjoy when they take a self-drive holiday. We are delighted to support the photographic community with this prize."

The EPSON International Pano Awards competition closes April 30, 2010, with winners announced in May 2010. The competition aims to showcase the work of panoramic photographers worldwide and be the largest and most important competition for panoramic photography.

As the largest privately owned leisure vehicle operator in the world, Apollo has a fleet of over 4000 quality rental vehicles. Apollo operates 23 branches throughout Australia, Canada, New Zealand and the USA.
